DISCUSSION: On March 27, 2001 the Board authorized the County staff working in conjunction with the Central Valley Center for the Arts to proceed with program validation, architect selection and project management. A tradition of the Board of Supervisors is to occasionally name public facilities after persons who have demonstrated a long-term continuing commitment to the citizens of Stanislaus County. The Gallo Family, its individuals and foundation, have given millions of dollars of support to a wide variety of community endeavors over the years—the United Way, Community Hospice, Laura's House, Salvation Army and many, many others too numerous to mention.

As you know, the Gallo Family under the leadership of Ernest Gallo, chairman of the Gallo organization, has pledged $10,000,000 towards the performing arts project. Through the leadership of Marie Gallo, who has chaired the community committee, an additional seven million dollars (including five million from the Mary Stuart Rodgers Foundation) has been raised. Under Mrs. Gallo's leadership a non-profit corporation, The Central Valley Center for the Arts, has been formed, market studies, performance programming and identification of our youth as a prime audience for the activities of the Center have been identified.

The Central Valley Center for the Arts has committed to raise the additional funds needed to complete the funding for this project. Because of the long-standing and continuing contributions already made by the Gallo Family to a variety of community endeavors and this current generous pledge, we are recommending the Center be named the Gallo Performing Arts Center.
