DISCUSSION:

Respecting all senior citizens and dependent adults in Stanislaus County includes being aware of potential abuse for this population. According to federal government estimates, as many as 5 million older, frail and vulnerable citizens are abused, neglected and exploited each year. Although all 50 states have laws against elder and dependent adult abuse, the incidents of abuse have tripled over the last ten (10) years.

In California alone, Adult Protective Services received 116,551 reports of abuse to elders and dependent adults in 2010. In this same time period, Stanislaus County Adult Protective Services program received 1,664 reports of abuse to elders and dependent adults. This is estimated to be only about one quarter of the abuse that actually occurs in California.

Whether the abuse is financial, physical, emotional or basic neglect, our senior citizens and disabled adults have the right to protection under the law. Statistics show that in 90 percent of all cases of abuse, the perpetrator is a family member, generally a child or grandchild. These family members are often motivated by a sense of entitlement. Victims may be embarrassed, intimidated or overwhelmed by the situation. They may be afraid of reprisal by their abuser or unaware that there is help available.

Elder and dependent adult abuse is an issue that cannot be ignored. All citizens, especially our most vulnerable citizens, deserve to live safe, secure lives, without fear, neglect, pain or exploitation whether they are living in their own homes or an assisted or skilled nursing facility.

In 2011, the Department is requesting a proclamation consistent with the International Network for the Prevention of Elder Abuse in designating June 15, 2011 as World Elder Abuse Awareness Day. Elder and dependent adult abuse has become a global issue. We must recognize and respond to the mistreatment of older people in whatever setting it occurs, so that the later years of life will be free from abuse, neglect and exploitation. Increasing awareness and education are the keys to addressing this issue. In Stanislaus County, the Stanislaus Elder Abuse Prevention Alliance (SEAPA) has created partnerships with the Adult Protective Services, Area Agency on Aging, Public Guardian, Ombudsman, District Attorney, law enforcement, local fire departments, financial institutions, AARP, utility companies, health services, and various other organizations. These partnerships have taken on the responsibility of elder abuse education, advocacy, training, and problem solving with outreach efforts throughout the County. As our population ages and the escalation of abuse continue, it is imperative that both professionals and laypersons become more aware of the scope and issues surrounding this topic. We all must work to break the silence. Proclaiming June 15, 2011 as Elder and Dependent Adult Abuse Awareness Day will increase the focus on awareness of elder and dependent adult abuse in Stanislaus County.
